Your deep loyalty and leadership exemplify the Franklin College spirit. On behalf of the board of trustees I would like to express how grateful we are to all of you who made financial gifts to the Franklin Fund and The Future Unfolds campaign. Support in both areas was key during the fiscal year, enabling the college to reaffirm its educational mission and advance its strategic vision.

Those who know and love Franklin know its mission of employing the liberal arts to prepare students for productive and satisfying lives of excellence, leadership and service is timeless, but not priceless. With 97 percent of Franklin students needing some form of financial aid, your annual and endowed support is vital to helping students finance their educations and, in turn, their futures. Your gifts in support of scholarships, study-abroad courses, internships and research programs give students the chance to learn, lead and serve so that they can go on to make a difference in the world. We are grateful you continue to see the value in investing in Franklin students.

We are also appreciative that you continue to support and trust the board of trustees to provide oversight of Franklin College. Two years ago when the board approved and adopted a new campus master plan as a blueprint for the future, we asked for your help with Phase One of The Future Unfolds campaign. Our agenda was ambitious, calling for construction of a new art studio and new facilities for football, soccer, tennis, softball and track and field. Our vision was to attempt matching the college’s outstanding academic offerings with equally impressive physical facilities, reaffirming the distinctive features of a Franklin education and building and strengthening the ways in which the institution can serve young men and women.

Look across campus today, and I believe you will agree we have succeeded. The new glass-enclosed art studio in the Johnson Center for Fine Arts is filled with student masterpieces in progress. Branigin Field is a hub of activity, nearly 24-7, with the men’s and women’s soccer teams and football team alternating practices and sometimes hosting multiple games on the same day. And Grizzly Park, dedicated on Oct. 15, during Homecoming, is a vibrant venue where student-athletes are benefiting from lifelong lessons in discipline, teamwork and perseverance. This is Franklin. This is the result of your tremendous caring and generosity.

Thank you so very much for helping the college complete Phase One and give momentum to Phase Two of The Future Unfolds campaign. We’re counting on your continued support and involvement as we carry on with the important work ahead and embrace new opportunities for Franklin students.

Sincerely,

Susan Johnson DeVoss ’65
Board chair
Nine years ago when Candace and I came to Franklin College, we found an institution that was a solid example of excellence on many fronts but not necessarily telling its story to the fullest. The college did many things well but was not reaching the heights it was worthy of achieving. Times have changed.

Today the phrases I hear most often from friends of the college are:
- I’m impressed with the students.
- I’m proud of how well the athletics teams have done.
- I can’t believe how much the campus has changed.
- My family’s legacy with Franklin goes back X generations.

Yes, friends of Franklin College are proud, with good reason: Steady annual student enrollment of approximately 1,000, a redesigned liberal arts curriculum that affirms our mission and embraces the opportunities of a new era, a strategic plan that builds upon the distinctive features of a Franklin education and expands our vision for engaging students with the real world, a campus master plan that sets an ambitious agenda for improving facilities to better integrate living and learning and caring employees who excel at helping the young people who come here to prepare for significant careers.

That’s a glimpse of what’s happening in our vibrant campus community. With this Annual Report, we want to show you more about what Franklin College accomplished during the last fiscal year. We also want to assure you that we’re continually thinking beyond current achievements — exploring, assessing and planning how to keep the college positioned for excellence. With your help, we are deepening our students’ minds and expanding their expectations of what they can accomplish for others.

As a friend of Franklin College, you are much more than a spectator of this campus community; you are our partner, ambassador and collaborator. You are part of our story. Each time you share with someone all the reasons Franklin is remarkable or make a financial commitment, you help to enhance the college’s reputation, which is a key to broadening donor support, recruiting strong students and attracting top faculty.

As you turn the pages of this Annual Report, we hope you will be inspired to tell someone about the extraordinary happenings at Franklin College, and we hope that you will be encouraged to renew your personal commitment of support.

Together we can enhance the quality learning environment on campus and sustain our mission of preparing men and women for lives of excellence, leadership and service. Thank you for your loyalty and your commitment to the future of Franklin College.

Sincerely,

Jay Moseley
President

Giant Grizzly paws were painted on streets surrounding campus to show pride and pay homage to the college mascot. During athletics events, the paws helped guide guests to campus parking lots.

The Ben Franklin statue at the corner of Branigin Boulevard and Monroe Street underwent a series of makeovers last year thanks to student groups, who were passionate about philanthropic causes and proud of their accomplishments. During Breast Cancer Awareness Month, college employees supported the cause by decorating Ben.

The 2010 Homecoming theme was “Be part of the tradition.” Returning popular events included the class reunions, Hall to Franklin Dinner, Old Gold Luncheon, Athletic Hall of Fame inductions, football game and Greek gatherings. The privy burning ritual was suspended due to prolonged dry weather.
Franklin College 2010–11 Annual Report

Financial commitment to the college.

Encourages seniors to keep in contact after they graduate and to make a four-year fundraising program. The program of 2011 made a commitment to the Student Foundation’s Pledge to Stay Connected.

Fifty-three percent of graduates in the Class of 2011 made a commitment to the Student Foundation’s Pledge to Stay Connected, indicating that one or more of their relatives had graduated from or was currently attending Franklin College.

Approximately 150 students completed Winter Term internships in 2011, taking advantage of the chance to gain real-world career experience while also earning course credit. On average, 95 percent of students complete one or more internships before they graduate.

franklincollege.edu
Approximately one-third of the entering class was first-generation scholars. Many volunteered for a pilot program called First Scholars, First Families. The program paired these individuals with mentors and provided resources to help them adjust to college life and improve their odds for success.

Commencement exercises for the Class of 2014, the largest graduating class in college history, were held May 21. The college awarded 232 degrees.
Franklin College achieved a level of support this past fiscal year virtually unheard of in the field of educational fundraising. A remarkable 100 percent of Franklin’s full-time faculty, Board of Trustees and Alumni Council members made a financial contribution to the college.

College employees conducted a giving campaign to support the United Way of Johnson County. Approximately 130 donors gave $17,963, helping United Way carry out its mission and continue funding 21 health and human-service agencies and 86 programs in the community.

College employees led a food drive benefiting the Interchurch Food Pantry of Johnson County. Promotions encouraged guests to bring canned goods to November athletics events in exchange for discounted food items. College employees led a food drive benefiting the Interchurch Food Pantry of Johnson County.

A remarkable 100 percent of Franklin’s full-time faculty, Board of Trustees and Alumni Council members made a financial contribution to the college.

The board of trustees adopted a smoke/tobacco-free policy in support of providing a healthy, comfortable and productive environment for faculty, staff, and students. Free assistance was offered to help individuals adjust to the new policy.

The college launched a pilot Wellness Program last year, encouraging students and employees to “go, be and do.” Free fitness classes, lectures and workshops focused on centering body, mind and spirit. The student dining hall also added several lite menu options.
Franklin College purchased a portable water filtration system from the nonprofit Edge Outreach and began exploring ways to integrate the system into service-learning programs, giving students opportunities to help the 900 billion-plus people in the world who do not have access to safe drinking water.
Greening and environmental stewardship

Franklin College was one of 13 colleges nationwide recognized for excellence in recycling by the Alcoa Foundation and Keep America Beautiful. The prize was 1,000 recycling bins, an incentive for every student to join in campus greening efforts.

Bicycle transportation continued to grow in popularity among the campus community, giving the college cause to install two parking corrals. These locally manufactured corrals accommodate 70 bicycles and occasionally mopeds.

The college conserved approximately 1 million gallons of water for the second consecutive year by eliminating tray service from the student dining hall.
A group of personal values.

For the eighth consecutive year, the college’s Richardson Chapel served as a meeting place for participants in the ABC/IN-KY and ABC/GI Church Leadership Institute. The three-year preparatory program provides ministry training. Franklin faculty members periodically assist by offering workshops in their areas of expertise.

For the fifth consecutive year, the college held a Religious Emphasis Week that included an information fair, free lectures and workshops. The activities provided exposure to a variety of religious ideologies while supporting individual development of personal values.

Faith and heritage

Franklin College's director of church relations and the director of the intercultural honors program visited the Philippines, exploring opportunities with Jesuit and Baptist-connected universities that may partner with Franklin in offering student and professor exchange programs.

The college's annual convocation lecture series theme was faith, one of Franklin's five core values. Speakers, including Byron Pitts, chief national correspondent for "CBS Evening News," shared ideas on how to have a purposeful life within one's own belief system.

The American Baptist Women's Ministries of Indiana held its 75th annual summer conference on the Franklin College campus in June. In keeping with tradition, the women awarded scholarships to several college-bound students with American Baptist ties.
Head football coach Mike Leonard was named the 2010 Heartland Athletic Conference’s Coach of the Year for the fourth time in five seasons. The football team advanced to the NCAA Division III Championship playoffs for the third time in four years. The Grizzlies also kept the Victory Bell after defeating Hanover College for the sixth straight season.

Runner Heather Waterman ’11 earned qualification to NCAA national-level competition in both cross-country and track and field. In May, she earned All-America honors by placing fourth in the 5,000-meter run during Division III’s national championships.
Sound minds and bodies

Quarterback Kyle Ray ’11 was a national top 10 finalist for the Gagliardi Trophy, an annual award recognizing Division III’s most well-rounded individual achiever in football, academics and community service.

Head baseball coach Lance Marshall was voted the HCAC’s Coach of the Year for the third time. The baseball team made its first-ever trip to the NCCA Division III national tournament in May. The Grizzlies’ season ended 30-14. During their outstanding baseball careers, the seniors helped the Grizzlies achieve 113 victories.

Alternative spring break trips, organized by college staff, provided out-of-state service-learning opportunities. In Kentucky, students partnered with the Lexington Habitat for Humanity affiliate in constructing a home, and, in New York, students worked in a soup kitchen, met with U.N. leaders and explored civil rights landmarks.

For the second consecutive year, students in Painting I class collaborated on a painting, which was 4 feet by 5 feet and took 120 hours to complete. The donated painting now hangs where it can be enjoyed by center residents.

As part of new student orientation, the annual FOCUS program paired students with peer mentors, alumni and college employees and placed them at partnering nonprofit organizations throughout Johnson County for a day of service. Through the program, more than 400 volunteers gave approximately 1,500 service hours to 26 organizations.
The Corporation for National and Community Service named Franklin College to the President’s Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll for exemplary, innovative and effective programs for the fifth consecutive year. Franklin was the only independent college in Indiana named to the list “With Distinction,” a designation earned for the fourth consecutive year.

Campus organizations including Best Buddies, College Mentors for Kids, Habitat for Humanity, Student Foundation and Up til Dawn enabled students to make a direct impact in the community and world. Students involved in these groups helped mentor, educate, empower and fundraise to improve quality of life for disadvantaged individuals.
